Students were introduced to the All About Me online portfolio. Students were then taken to the computer lab and asked them to explore their online portfolios. Interest among students was lack-lustre. Students did not seem engaged at first. We are currently in the process of exploring AAM further by providing the students with more specific tasks to complete on the website. Our hope is that with more exposure the students will become more engaged.	Language Arts - Journal Entries
Our Division focused upon activities that would be aligned with the SIP in terms of encouraging students to think about their learning. Tasks focused upon students reflecting upon and setting goals, which they recorded in various ways in their AAM Portfolios. Tasks in Grade 4 centered upon setting learning goals as suggested in the Board Christmas Activity tasks, in Grade 5 on identifying individual learning styles and what would best support individual learning, and in Grade 6 on identifying very specific personal and academic goals. These activities familiarized students with the AAM platform, as well as metacognitive and self-regulation goals.
Teacher did a lesson on Stewardship of the Earth in Religion Class. Students went into AAM and selected "Journal". They wrote about how they can be a steward of the Earth.
